

Lecture Series in Law and Economics

HOW SHOULD THE LEGAL PROFESSION BE REGULATED?

Around the world, the legal profession is regulated in a variety of ways. In many countries, lawyers must satisfy occupational licensing requirements to enter the profession, follow the rules of professional conduct while practicing, and complete ongoing continuing legal education requirements throughout their careers. This workshop will provide an overview of how legal professions are regulated, highlight insights from recent empirical research on the effects of various regulations, and identify key open empirical questions for future research.

Speaker

Prof. Kyle Rozema

Northwestern University Pritzker School of Law

Kyle Rozema is a Professor of Law at Northwestern University Pritzker School of Law. His research focuses on how we should structure and regulate the legal profession, legal institutions, and law schools. He studies questions about the bar exam, lawyer discipline, judicial reform, and clerkship access, using novel data and empirical methods. Much of his work aims to estimate the causal effects of legal rules and institutional design, while also offering descriptive insights into how the legal system operates. He is also the co-author, with Adam Chilton, of Trial by Numbers: A Lawyer's Guide to Statistical Evidence, a non-technical introduction to statistical evidence for law students and lawyers.

Discussant

Prof. Xiaohong Yu

Tsinghua University
Department of Political Science

Moderator

Prof. Lauren Yu-Hsin Lin

City University of Hong Kong
School of Law

May 28, 2025

(Wednesday)

8:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m. (HKT)

Online via Zoom

The Lecture Series in Law and Economics is a collaborative initiative between the City University of Hong Kong School of Law and the Asian Law and Economics Association. Featuring renowned scholars from around the world, the series explores the application of economic analysis to legal and policy issues, fostering dialogue and collaboration among legal and economics scholars, practitioners, and policymakers.

Subject to the Law Society of Hong Kong Accreditation
1 CPD Point May Be Available Upon Application

REGISTER NOW

Registration Deadline:

May 26, 2025

Time zone:

5:30 p.m. New Delhi

7:00 p.m. Bangkok/Ho Chi Minh City/Jakarta

8:00 p.m. Beijing/HK/Kuala Lumpur/

Singapore/Taipei

9:00 p.m. Seoul/Tokyo